SUMMARY AND DETAILS
Flor has been looking forward to summer with her best friend since last summer! But an unexpected twist of fate lands her working in her family’s mattress store and her best friend at band camp. Her life gets even worse when she has to compete in the local honey pageant (again) and volunteer to help a recluse beekeeper with her worst frenemy. With her parents fighting and the possibility of moving to New Jersey on the horizon, this summer cannot get any worse.

Grade Level: 3rd-7th
Lexile Level: 870L
Guided Reading Level: S
Genre: fiction, chapter book

HOW TO IMPLEMENT THE HIGH FLIERS BOOK CLUB
• Determine if this book is the correct reading level for the students by Guided Reading Level or Lexile Level.

• Create a schedule with the students for assignments, including how many chapters need to be completed along with the Student Guide at each book club meeting.

• The recommendation is to meet weekly to discuss the chapters and questions.

• Make a plan of how students will make up the work if they miss an assignment.

• All content can be assigned digitally through LMS.

• The Student Guide has the possibility of four parts for each chapter; Random Bee Facts, Word Detective, Discussion Questions, and What’s The Buzz
• Random Bee Facts -- each chapter of the book begins with a Random Bee Fact. The student guide will provide a combination of non-fiction web articles and video links for the students to use to answer a question.

• Word Detective -- students will use dictionary skills to find the definition. This component is to help the students to develop stronger vocabulary skills and does not need to be addressed at the book club meetings. Dictionary.com has been added as a resource for some of the words as an alternative to a classroom dictionary.

• Discussion Questions -- this section will address the plot, characters, figurative language, story arc, predictions, and other literature standards for Common Core.

• What’s the Buzz -- this component should start the discussion for the next meeting. These open-ended questions are to engage the students to make a personal connection with the story. Sharing their own experiences and opinions will help drive the discussion.

Special Note to the Educator: This book addresses race and discrimination in an age-appropriate way. The main character, Flor, is from a bi-racial family. When Flor wins the local honey pageant, Candice responds by telling her that the judges had to pick someone of color. The author addresses this as racial discrimination. This can be a difficult subject to discuss with students but it is certainly a worthwhile discussion. Please consider this weblink from PBS Kids Talking to Young Children about Race and Racism. There are several articles and a video to help the educator be prepared for the discussion and questions that the students may have.

Write a book review: A book review is supposed to help someone decide if they would want to read the book you just finished.

• Start by telling the audience what this book is about including who, what, where, when, and how.

• Tell just enough to inform but do not give away the surprising things, and never tell the ending!

• Then give your opinion of the book, what you liked or disliked.

• Finish with a three bee, two bee, or one bee rating!
